HONORED SON OF VERMONT.

Ex-Gov. John W. Stewart of Middlebury Is 81.

Middlebury, Nov. 26.—Ex-Gov. John W. Stewart of this town was 81 years old Saturday, having been born in Middlebury, November 24, 1825. After preparation in Middlebury academy, he entered Middlebury college, from which he graduated with honor in 1848.

Adopting the legal profession, he studied with the late Horatio Seymour of this town, and was admitted to the bar in 1850. Four years later he formed a partnership with ex-U. S. Senator Phelps, and maintained the connection until Mr. Phelps' death the next year.

Early in his career, Mr. Stewart associated himself with the political affairs of Vermont, and honors have come to him in abundance. From 1852 to 1854 he was state's attorney of Addison county, and in 1856 he represented Middlebury in the legislature. In 1857, when the state capital at Montpelier burned, Mr. Stewart was largely instrumental in retaining Montpelier as the capital of the state, being the leader in the opposition of the movement to change the seat of the state government to Burlington.

After serving two years in the state Senate, Mr. Stewart was again elected to represent Middlebury in the general assembly in 1864, '65, '66 and '67, being chosen speaker of the House at each of the last three sessions.

Mr. Stewart was the first governor of Vermont elected after the constitutional convention which made the election biennial instead of annual. He served as chief magistrate from 1876 to 1879. The routine of state affairs was conducted with dignity and skill, and his gubernatorial incumbency was one of usefulness and honor.

He served for four terms in the lower House of the national Congress, from 1880 to 1888, when he returned to the active practice of law.

Mr. Stewart was married in 1860 to Emma, daughter of Philip Battell of Middlebury. Of their five children two daughters and a son still survive. The daughters are Eliza and Jessie, while their son, Philip, graduated from Yale in 1886, and is now a prominent ranchman in Colorado, and one of the most intimate friends of President Roosevelt.
